Dear Anne,

I will try to write a line, but it is pretty hard—
I can't find our names! About the fair, it is rumored that they say they have made $800, but nobody believes it—they had a German woman—Mrs. Frank—to sing with her harp. Her voice had to slay. Everything was very shabbily. So some one of us, Miss Petersen I believe, who went in said there was no one there bravely the first evening. I trust she asked one of the tender how they were getting on & the answer was rather poorly not as well as they had hoped. Mrs. Davis is dead. Mary at Providence, coming home to-day—music in the highest of spirits—the soiree going on finely—300 tickets are to be issued at $1.00 each.

Christmas night—the colour folks, Brown &c. I mean it is expected will wait—Bishop is joining here to-night to talk over matters — they hope to stop him till after the fair — Henry & I well keep office — Henry is smoking "Offening" this afternoon — Liberty Bell going on famously — Maria has written a sonnet & so has Perpetua — All seems well — A notice of the fair & notice of address signed by Maria, Mrs Ellis & Mrs Floten & other respectable names are to be officed to Mr Ellis is troubled or his wife's name appearing. It has the notice cooking it up — giving it the lady like toches I suppose her name is to be on through.
I. Lewallen & Mrs. Southwick say it is thought will finish a little at least so Mrs. Southwick thanks. Mrs. Frank shows will perhaps!! Henry is better I in good spirits I will write every night if possible Edmunds stay very good indeed so is Mrs. Hollen tomorrow walk Maria's notice of Dr. Hollen very pretty, for the "Bell" Henry begins to think Bishop more of a fool than knowe
